AFRAID OF THE FOREIGN VOTE.

The Walker Lake Bulletin, is an out and out American paper. It says:

"Nobody has ever been afraid of the American vote. Americans as a rule vote for what they believe to be right. They may be wrong, but they are with few exceptions moved by principle in their selection of party affiliation. On the other hand every office seeker or friend of an office seeker avoids if possible anything that may tend to excite the prejudices of the foreign born vote, and this may be seen now in the utterances of journals that feel American but dare not go too far least some naturalized citizens shall be offended. No one, now, but the most unscrupulous scoundrel or the most ignorant bigot has the effrontery to advocate unrestricted immigration as was freely done some years ago, but fearful of tramping on a European corn confine themselves to an apologetic remonstrance against the coming of paupers and criminals. One can always see behind these half expressed timid remarks the thought—'I wish I knew how the cat would jump.'

"Now, the cat will jump and none of the weak and shrinking friends of everybody will be able to hang their candidate's cards on her tail when she starts."

They All Strike.

The Chinese laundrymen of New York have struck for $4 per day, and seem likely to carry their point. In the East an impression prevails that Chinese cheap labor would be a remedy for strikes. A similar belief once existed as to Polish and Hungarian laborers, but the delusion has been rudely dispelled. The Chinese are more strongly imbued with the idea of associations than any other people. The Post says: They are even more ready to strike than white laborers when they see a probability of gaining a point, and were more willing to join the Knights of Labor than the Knights were to receive them. The Chinese of New York have thus far been doing most of their striking among themselves, as they have been too few in number to produce any impression on the labor market, but these firms which contemplate hiring them would do well to take their striking propensities into account.

Artesian Wells in Utah.

The sinking of artesian wells has become an important industry in Utah, giving employment to a great many men, while the more important feature is that of supplying good water to districts almost worthless heretofore, because of the lack of water. It was only two or three years ago that such wells were proven practicable through the efforts of a few persons driving pipe down till a body of water was tapped. Such wells are now flowing in all the prominent valleys, and in some localities they are located pretty well up on the slopes near the base of the foothills.—Salt Lake Tribune.

A Prophetic Rhyme.

In 1857 when Lotie Crabtree was singing in the mining camps of California she had a man named Mort Taylor to write local verses and Taylor has recently dug up one from his scrap book on John Mackay as follows: You know John Mackay—he is one who has sense and zeal combining, Will doubtless make a fortune soon, By pushing into mining. That he has not yet made his pile To all but seems a wonder; For there's not a stone or stump around But what John has looked under.

San the 1st.

There is talk of making Dan Lyons King of the Sandwich Islands. Dan would make a good, honest, level headed, incorruptible monarch, and rule with dignity and good sense.

—If the editor of the Tribune will read up the history of his own country during the last fifty years he will discover that the APPEAL's article on Victoria is fully substantiated by the facts. These facts are so notorious that Gladstone, the greatest Prime Minister that England ever had, has after a life long service for the Crown, turned his back upon the Government and is today fighting the Coercion bill with all the ability at his command.
